Today, we are going to write the next section of our newspaper article: the main body.

In order to help us structure this, let's create 'journey map' of the event. This will allow us to make sure we write everything in the correct order.

This is an example of a journey map for my newspaper article.

At snake enclosure → Dudley leans against glass to admire the snake → Glass vanishes

Snake escapes ← Lands in water ← Dudley falls in

Now have a go at your own...

We are going to use this journey map to create our own paragraph of writing.

We are going to try and include:

- I.S.P.A.C.E openers

- Time connectives to show when, and in what order, things happened

- Interesting punctuation : ; -..- (...) , ' ? !

WALT write the main body of a newspaper article

Use your plan, look at the example from Monday, and think back to when we have written newspapers before to write the main body of your newspaper article.

Be sure to include the key details and try to use the following:

- I.S.P.A.C.E openers

- Time connectives to show when, and in what order, things happened

- Interesting punctuation : ; -..- (...) , ' ? !
